“Dreams? Put them into action! Our dream house floats. And we built it ourselves. And because it’s nice and big, we even let out guest rooms.”

Marco Romano, Amsterdam, Netherlands

And we're off! The floating foundation for the new houseboat has arrived.

We spent long enough planning it all. Now we're putting our plans into action.

The houseboat should have absolutely everything. We discuss the sanitary system with Rob Kniesmeyer from HORNBAACH.

The first window's in place. It'll be followed by more than 20 others, so that it's nice and bright inside.

The roof is on and all windows and doors are in place. Now we need have no worries about the bad weather.

It's only outside that the water's dangerous now. I use a wrist strap to make sure the power screwdriver doesn't follow my cell phone - better to be on the safe side.

Even though there's still loads to be done, our boat already looks really cozy from outside. It'll be worth all the effort and we can't wait to move in.
